How to gift WorshipMetrics to your church

The gift goes to your church, not to us. That keeps it simple, keeps the church in control, and makes it work like any other charitable contribution.

1

Give to your church

Make a gift in the amount of the plan you'd like to cover, using your church's normal giving method. Designate it: "WorshipMetrics subscription."

2

Hand over the note

Give your pastor, administrator, or tech director the recommendation letter on page 3. It explains what the software is and how to sign up.

3

Your church signs up

The church subscribes at worshipmetrics.com using its own payment method. Onboarding takes about 30 minutes and the first help session is free.

Why this is a gift that gets used every week

- One window for the booth. Run-of-show, cameras, switcher, audio meters, and stream health in one dashboard, so volunteers aren't juggling five apps at 8:45 a.m.
- Documentation that survives turnover. Every device, cable, and signal path recorded, so the knowledge doesn't leave when a volunteer does.
- Help that answers. Luminos AI in the app and a real phone line, 910-WORSHIP, seven days a week, including Sunday morning.
- Streaming with no encoder box. The Stream plan replaces a dedicated streaming service and the $1,500 hardware encoder that usually goes with it.

THE TAX PART

In plain English

- Your gift goes to your church, which is a charitable organization. A payment made directly to WorshipMetrics is a software purchase, not a donation. That's why we don't take the gift ourselves.
- Designating a gift for a purpose like "WorshipMetrics subscription" is normal practice. Your church keeps discretion over how funds are used, which is what keeps the gift deductible.
- For gifts of $250 or more, your church will provide a written acknowledgment. Keep it with your tax records.
- Beginning with the 2026 tax year, a charitable deduction is available even for taxpayers who don't itemize, so more donors than ever can benefit.

We're a software company, not tax advisors. Please confirm the details with your own tax professional or your church's finance team before relying on them.

Recommendation letter

Fill in the blanks, tear it out, or copy the text into an email. Your church makes the final call on how designated funds are used.

Dear _____,

I've made a designated gift of $_____ to the church for a WorshipMetrics subscription, and I wanted to tell you why.

WorshipMetrics is a platform built for church production teams. It puts the Sunday run-of-show, camera and switcher control, audio meters, and stream health in one window, documents the whole AV system so the knowledge doesn't walk out the door with a volunteer, and backs it all with support that picks up on Sunday mornings (910-WORSHIP). The Stream plan also replaces a separate streaming service and the hardware encoder that usually comes with it.

I'd love for our team to have it for the coming year. You can see the plans and sign up at worshipmetrics.com/pricing. The first onboarding session is free, and they'll help the team get the first service loaded. Of course, the church can use the gift however it sees best.

Thank you for everything you do to make Sunday happen.

With gratitude,

You've received a gift. Here's what to do.

A member has covered your WorshipMetrics subscription. Three things close the loop.

- ☐ Record it as a designated contribution. Suggested fund name: "Technology – WorshipMetrics," or add it to your existing technology or production fund.
- ☐ Issue your standard acknowledgment. Required for gifts of $250 or more. Use the same letter you'd send for any other contribution.
- ☐ Subscribe at worshipmetrics.com/pricing using a church payment method. We'll email a receipt the church can keep for its records, and we'll schedule the free onboarding call.

QUESTIONS

Can the donor pay WorshipMetrics directly and count it as a donation?

No. WorshipMetrics is a for-profit software company, so a payment to us isn't a charitable gift. Giving through the church is what makes it deductible, and it's cleaner for the church's books.

What if the church decides not to use it?

Designated gifts are a recommendation, not a requirement. The church keeps discretion over the funds. In practice, churches honor donor intent whenever they reasonably can.

Can a business sponsor a church's subscription?

Yes. Depending on how it's structured and whether the business receives recognition, it may be treated as a charitable gift or as an advertising expense. The business should ask its accountant.

Can a donor give anonymously?

Yes. Use the church's normal anonymous giving process and send the recommendation letter separately, or ask the church office to pass it along.

Does the church need to be a registered 501(c)(3)?

Churches are generally treated as tax-exempt without filing, but the church's finance team can confirm its status.

Is there a nonprofit or multi-church discount?

Yes. Contact us and we'll talk through the right fit. Multi-campus and denomination rollouts are handled directly.
